

Side J

Herman, Charity, Nickie

1

HERMAN

You didn't think we'd let you go without givin' ya a little party, did ya?

CHARITY

A party? For me? Oh, you shouldn't have. You shouldn't have.

HERMAN

And now, through the courtesy of the Hostesses of the Fan Dango Ballroom, Local 107, the waiters, the janitor, Joe the bouncer, Harry the Cop, and our three regular customers since 1954 ... we present... A seventeen dollar cake.

CHARITY

(Bends over and reads the inscription.)
"Happy Birthday Angelo"???

NICKIE

You couldn't get a new cake, you cheapskate?

HERMAN

All right, all right. I didn't know she was leavin' till this morning.

CHARITY

Never mind. It's the sentiment that counts ... Herman, Angelo and I thank you very much.

HERMAN

For a broad, you gotta lotta class.

(to ALL.)

It ain't often that one of our girls leaves to marry a nice, respectable guy. In fact, this is the first time it ever happened. And so as a parting gesture, our three regular customers since 1954, wouldlike a farewell dance with our own, bride-to-be, Miss Charity Valentine!